

Namorutunga

Simon Ipoo

Zablon Alex Nguku

English

Namorutunga

Namorutunga in Turkana, Kenya, is an ancient site of 19 stone pillars. This story explains how those stones came to be at the site.

ASb approved

Namorutunga

Simon Ipoo

Zablon Alex Nguku

English

Namorutunga
Author: Simon Ipoo
Illustrator: Zablon Alex Nguku
African Storybook Initiative

A long time ago, in a Turkana village, people loved to dance edonga, the traditional dance.

Every evening they gathered together and danced edonga. The whole region came to know of this village and its dancers.

People from nearby villages also came to this village to dance.

A stranger heard of the famous village. He sent his messenger to go there before him.

When the messenger arrived, the villagers were afraid. They wondered who the stranger was, and why he had sent his messenger. The villagers prepared food and animals to be slaughtered.

The villagers gathered and waited. They sat the whole day until evening. But the stranger did not arrive.

That night, the villagers danced as usual until midnight. That night there were many dancers. Everybody in the village was excited.

While they were dancing, the stranger arrived. Although he was a stranger, he looked just like the other villagers. They did not notice him at first.

When it was the stranger's turn to dance, he joined the men. But his dancing was strange and different from the others.

People were amused and began to laugh at the stranger. Some dancers fell down laughing. Some sat down, and others knelt laughing.

The stranger did not like people laughing at him. He decided to curse them. He stopped dancing, and everyone became a stone in the position they were in. Some were lying down, others standing, others sitting and kneeling. Then the stranger left the village.

Since then, those stones remained there. At night they can be heard singing and dancing edonga.
That is how we have the site of Namoratunga.

You are free to download, copy, translate or adapt this story and use the illustrations as long as you attribute in the following way:

Simon Ipoo

Author -

Simon Ipoo

Translation

-

Simon Ipoo

Illustration -

Zablon Alex Nguku

Language -

English

Level -

First paragraphs

© African Storybook Initiative 2015

Creative Commons: Attribution 4.0

Source

www.africanstorybook.org

No image

